GEORGETOWN TAKES VIRGINIA'S SCALP IN A FAST GAME

Only Run Resulted, When Thom Threw Badly in Trying to Nab Maloney at Third in the Second Inning.

Georgetown triumphed over Virginia yesterday on Georgetown Field by 1 to 0. The Blue and Gray supporters consider the vanquishing of their Southern rivals one of their greatest athletic feats and the game will go down in the history of Georgetown as a red-letter day. Long before the time to call the game the stands were filled with ardent rooters of both teams that were to struggle for supremacy and between the various college yell and the strains of popular airs set forth by the Gonzaga Band, those in attendance were well entertained.

The feature of the game was the superb pitching of Tom Cantwell. The tall Georgetown star pitcher was in fine fettle and had the opposing batters completely at his mercy. Three hits were all that the heavy hitting team from Virginia could gather off his delivery and these were so widely separated that not a Virginia man could get any farther than second base. Susong, the lad who did things to Georgetown a few weeks ago in Charlottesville, was sent to the firing line by Coach Tom Brown in the hopes of adding still another game to the already long string of victories gathered in Virginia. The visiting twirler was in his usual good form, and would have won an ordinary game, but when pitted against the article of ball Cantwell was pitching he had a slim chance. Honors must be given to Cantwell in the pitchers' battle, for, although he only struck out four men to Susong's six, he did not issue a base on balls nor hit a man, both of which faults can be laid to the twirling of Susong.

Maloney's three-bagger in the second inning was the game for Georgetown. The sphere soared high over Dalton's head, and in the relay to third to catch the fiercest Georgetown man, Thom threw the ball high over Hoff's head; the lone tally of the game resulting.

Virginia did not get a hit until the third inning, when Susong, the third man up, caught the ball squarely on the nose and sent it sailing to deep right. Fast fielding on the part of Simon, however, kept the pitcher on first base, where he died when Honaker struck out.

Georgetown had a good chance to add a run to their total in the fourth, when, after two were down, Byrnes slashed a single to left and stole second. The best Georgetown could do was to strike out, however, Virginia's home rose high in the fifth only to fall with an awful crash. Johnson, the football fame, and to whom Georgetown's defeat last fall can be attributed, poked a safe one out to left field. Mudd let the next ball get away from him and the ex-halfback pursued the second sack. Cantwell endeavored to catch Johnson off second no less than five times, but the initial sacrifice was too fast for him. Maddux struck out and Woodson ended the agony of Georgetown by going out on an easy pop up to Scheller.

Wretched work on the bases lost another run or two for Georgetown in the seventh. After two had perished Scheller got a pass. Cantwell sent a fast one down toward second and Maddux, who was substituting at the position, booted the ball, and both men were safe. Dent followed Cantwell's example and sent another one. Virginia's home rose high and the husky second baseman made a mess of what should have been another easy out. Scheller was not satisfied with getting third, but instead made an attempt at reaching home. Maddux threw the ball to Woodson and the Georgetown shortstop fell by the wayside.

Hoff Hits Safely. Hoff, Virginia's first man up in the seventh, hit safely to center, but was doubled up at first a moment later on a double play, Brynes to Cantwell, on Dalton's fly.

Courtney had been issued his second pass to first and all the heavy hitters were to follow. The diminutive left fielder was doubled up at first though on the very next play, a pop up by Captain Smith to Susong. Sam Simon came along right here with a two-bagger, but it was of no use for Byrnes went out, Hoff to Johnson.

Virginia tried its level best to tie the game up in the ninth inning, but the Blue and Gray players were right on their toes and gathered in difficult chances. Susong put a fast one down Scheller's way, but the shortstop got the ball after a hard run in the short left field. Honaker made Simon show his sprinting powers when he knocked a long one out to deep center, which Sam found rather difficult to get. Walker was an easy out, Scheller to Byrnes.

They Celebrated Victory. The howling mob of Georgetown rooters immediately surged out onto the field and virtually carried the men to their dressing rooms. The band struck up "Dixie," and everyone seemed crazed with joy. Virginia had been taken into camp. The visiting rooters departed slowly and quietly from the grounds at the same time feeling deep the defeat that had been handed out to them in such a surprising manner.

In the Georgetown College refectory after the game, the students waited for the team to join them in partaking of cheer resounded through the spacious room, intermingled with many college songs.

Manager McLaughlin announced after the game that he would endeavor to arrange a deciding game to be played in Washington, either the latter part of this month or the first of June.

PIMLICO RACES CLOSE WITH A BRILLIANT CARD

Old Course's Last Day Afforded Enthusiasts Some Good Sport.

BALTIMORE, May 4.—Pimlico's spring meeting closed this afternoon with a brilliant card and a big attendance. This meeting has been the most successful of any in the history of the new club. The racing has been far above the average, and clean in every respect, and the public has given it a most satisfactory patronage.

The program today carried seven races, and was full of plums. The features were a handicap for three-year-olds and up, the Mt. Washington Steeplechase, and the Hertford Cup. The handicap was won by The Clown, who showed one of the best performances of his career. He got off in front, and running out bold and strong, stood off Ormonde's Right's challenge in the stretch, and won rather handily.

Ormonde's Right acted sulky at the post, and got off last. He closed up on the back stretch, and came home flying, but was not good enough to overhaul The Clown. Grazialio ran a good race, and took the show money.

Amanda H. Repeated. Amanda H. came right back today and captured the Mt. Washington Steeplechase, after a great run through the field with Varner. Amanda H. took the lead at the start, and with Racine II. she headed. She fenced beautifully, and had speed to burn.

H. Filpen started Varner and Cardigan, declaring to win with the former. Varner was sent after Amanda H., and these two made it warm. The Filpen horses ran stoutly and gamely, but every time he closed on the mare she would switch her tail and go away. On the flat she had the most left and finished with something in reserve. Rockstorm, who was well played, unseated his rider.

Youngster Good Rider. Tommy Wright, a sixteen-year-old lad, one of the best gentleman riders in this section, or any other for that matter, won the Hertford Cup on Hyperion. Mr. Wright, on this race, started off with a rush in this race when the well-known up and opened up a gap between him and the first turn. On the backstretch Mr. Wright took Hyperion up, and in short measure the battle was over. Hyperion, full of running, went right to the front and won with ease. Gallant stuck it out and got the place from Bulwark. Mr. Wright now has two legs on the cup. He won it last fall with Racine II., and one more win will make it his absolute property.

The cup is a beautiful and artistic trophy and was presented to the Jockey Club by Al Herford, the well-known pugilistic impresario. The first race of the day was won by The Wrestler, who is in great form at the moment. He took the lead at the start and towered his field all the way. Diamond was well meant here, but he never had speed enough to get to the flying leader. The Wrestler ran the five furlongs in 1:04, clipping a quarter of a second off the record made by Lady Vera and Jubilee.

Big Field Starts. A big field of two-year-olds started in the second race, which was won by Bergoo, from Carter Hall's stable. This
